

West Virginia Singled Out: Building a College List

Title/Name of Lesson	West Virginia Singled Out: Building a College List
Grade Level(s)	10th-11th grade students
Materials Needed	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Instructions • College preference cards • WV college information cards (double-sided) • Computer or tablet for each student
Main Idea/Question	This activity demonstrates how CFWV.com helps narrow a large group of colleges into a manageable list of potential options. Following the group activity, students will use CFWV.com to develop a college list for further research.
Lesson Introduction	Discuss important factors students consider when deciding on colleges to learn about or considering adding to their college lists. There is no need to go into detail at this time, which will come as the activity moves along. Here are a few questions to help guide the discussion: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. What are the first things you think about when someone asks what you like about colleges? 2. Think about when you have visited a college campus. What did you see or learn that you liked most? 3. What are the most important things to you when choosing a college?
Lesson Agenda/Procedure	After the discussion. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Choose the PICKER. 2. The rest will be volunteers in the COLLEGE POOL. 3. Give the PREFERENCE CARDS to the PICKER. Ask them to look through the cards and put them in order of importance. For example, they should put that card on the top if the location is most important to them. 4. Randomly hand out one COLLEGE CARD (double-sided) to each member of the COLLEGE POOL. Ask them to stand in a group facing the audience and to hold the card so the group can see the name and logo of the college and the volunteers can see the characteristics. Note for instruction: Have you ever heard someone equate the college search process with dating and marriage? Students “meet” several colleges, discover what they like or don’t like, and ultimately commit to one. One of the first steps in the college search and dating is to narrow the pool of potential options. Just like in the old dating game show SINGLED OUT, which appeared on MTV in the 1990s, it’s time to narrow down our own pool. Only this time, our students are working with colleges rather than dating options. Our students have thousands of colleges in the US to choose from. It’s time to help them determine what characteristics matter to them most and narrow the college list to a more management number. This activity uses the Singled Out gameplay to simulate a college search engine in an in-person, interactive opportunity to experience how a search engine uses students’ interests to sift through thousands of colleges and produces a manageable list for them to research further on cfwv.com. The Play: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 5. The PICKER reads the bolded question on their first preference card and states which choice(s) they prefer. They can choose to keep 1, 2, or all options. Remind them that making some choices is important because the

	goal is to find colleges that will fit them well. Doing so requires ideas about what type of environment or experience they want. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 6. After the PICKER states their preference, the members of the COLLEGE POOL review the information on the back of their cards. If their college does not meet the PICKER'S preference, they are eliminated and should sit down or leave the front of the room. 7. Continue play until 6-10 colleges remain in the pool. If one preference card eliminates so many colleges that fewer than 6 remain, ask the PICKER if they are flexible about that preference. If so, invite the last group of eliminated colleges to return to the pool. The PICKER then moves on to the next preference card. 8. When the COLLEGE POOL has been narrowed to 6-10, ask the pool members to read their fun facts. For each college, the PICKER decides whether they like the fun fact. If they do, the college remains in the pool. If they do not, the college is eliminated. 9. The final remaining colleges are the PICKER's College List. 10. Repeat play with a new PICKER to show that different preferences result in different final lists.
Closing Activity	As the game concludes, students will notice that the PICKER did not have an opportunity to select all the things that might be important to a student when researching colleges. Ask students for examples of other characteristics that are important to them. The answers will vary, but all are valid. Please ensure that items such as academic programs and costs are included in the list. Students can then research their final lists on cfwv.com and apply to top schools. Options: Blank cards are also provided if you would prefer that students do the initial research themselves. Additionally, specific career and tech centers from your region can be included.

Sports

There are many different ways to participate in sports in college. Many students like to be able to support their school teams. Do you want to be able to watch competitive matches?

- Yes
- No, or it doesn't matter to me

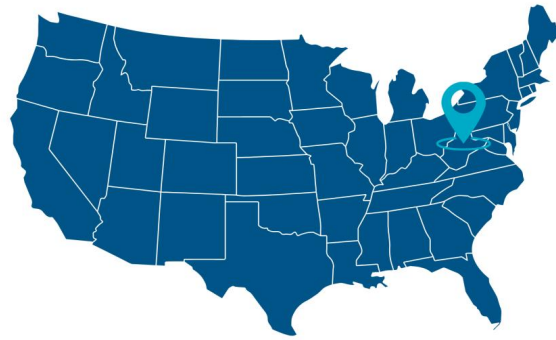

Choose your option.

If you would like to watch (or play) competitive athletics, say:

“If your college does not have varsity teams or play in the NCAA or NAIA, please sit down.”

Fraternities & Sororities

Fraternities and sororities are sometimes called the “Greek System.” They are social organizations formed around common goals and aspirations. Students who participate in “Greek Life” make a lifetime commitment to the group. Some colleges have these student groups, and some do not. No one is required to join. Do you want to join a fraternity or sorority in college?

- I would like to be a member of a fraternity or sorority.
- I would not like to be a member of a fraternity or sorority.

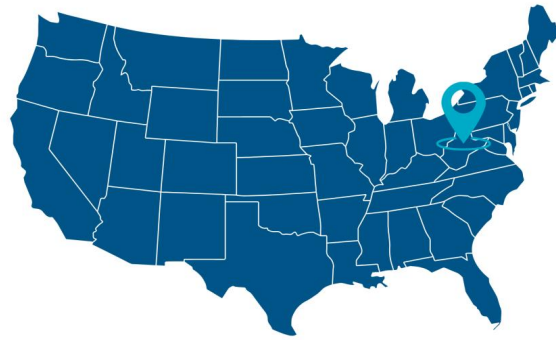

Choose your option.

If you would like to be in a fraternity or sorority, say:

- I want to earn a bachelor's degree, which usually takes four years.

Chose 1 or 2 options and say:

“Colleges offer different types of degrees, and... (read the choices you agree with). If your college does not offer these types of degrees, please sit down.”

Choose 1 or 2 options and say:

“Some colleges are religious and (read the choices you agree with). If your college is not this, please sit down.”

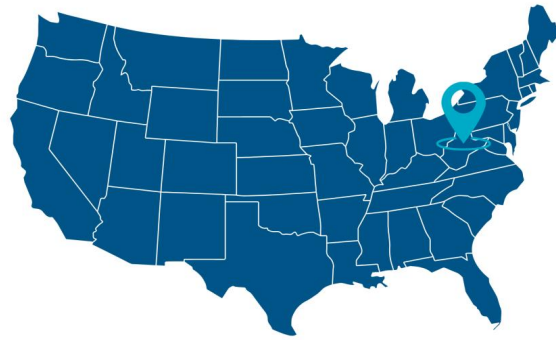

Public or Private

Public colleges are government-funded, while private colleges rely more on tuition and endowments and are usually more expensive. Often, public institutions offer a wider array of programs and course offerings. Do you want your college to be public or private?

- Public
- Private

Make your choice and say:

“I want my college to be (read your choice you agree with). If your college is not this, please sit down.”

Choose 1 or 2 options and say:
